

You could be expelled even if she consented:

John was expelled.

What can you do to protect yourself?

- If she has touched alcohol, do not touch her.
- Document and save her consent; never delete conversations.

What you need to know if you are accused of sexual misconduct:

- Your college will treat you as guilty under current interpretations of Federal Title IX.
- Consult a lawyer before you say anything - your school will not help you prove your innocence.
- Call your parents. You should not be ashamed of being falsely accused. We can help explain to your parents why this is happening to hundreds of college men.
- Prepare to fight for your future.

Resources:

stopabuseforeveryone.org
facecampusequality.org

